

High Street Press Release Info 2025

High Street is a vintage Rock and Roll band based out of Pottstown, PA. Playing both originals and covers from the 1950s and early 1960s, they are passionately reinventing the sound of rock's roots for the 21st century. Buckle up for hot renditions of classics by Little Richard, Elvis, and Eddie Cochran, then lean back for soft ballads by Dion, Buddy Holly, and the Everly Brothers. With their signature, snappy outfits and overflowing energy, you're guaranteed to be twisting the night away!

High Street has one goal: to spread joy through music and dancing. This band believes Rock n' Roll was formed from the irresistible urge to move; from feeling music so deeply that you can't keep your body still. Their mission is to reconnect with this timeless human spirit and get people out of their phones and on to the dance floor. In an era where community is scarce, High Street is reviving Rock n' Roll's in-your-face community building.

The name High Street is taken from the main thoroughfare in Pottstown, PA, where founding member Richard Thomas spent many years at the Ballroom on High developing a love for vintage dance. He wanted a name that harkened back to an era where Saturday night was best spent downtown with friends; cruising slow with the windows down until you reached your favorite venue or soda fountain. Once Richard found the talents of Brad Herring (bass/vocals) and the rhythmic stylings of Austin Bright (drums/vocals): it was time to Rock and Roll.

As High Street continues to evolve, their mission remains the same: Sharing the joy of music and dancing through the sounds of 50's and 60's Rock n' Roll.
